Dear Year 6,

As we approach SATs week, I wanted to take a moment to remind you of something really important.

These tests are designed to assess your skills in reading, grammar, punctuation, spelling and maths. They are just one way of showing what you have learned in these areas.

But they do not measure everything.

They do not show your creativity, your kindness, your sense of humour, your determination, your teamwork, or all the other talents that make you who you are. There is no test that can capture all the amazing and unique qualities that each of you brings to our school.

Over the weekend, try to get plenty of rest and take some time to relax. Spend time doing things you enjoy so that you come back feeling calm and ready.

Next week, all we ask is that you try your very best. That is enough. Be proud of the effort you put in and the progress you have made.

Remember, there is no way to “test” all the incredible things that make you you.

We are already very proud of each and every one of you.

Good luck!
